

MOORE STEPHENS – legal support
for your business

Doing business always carries a variety of risks, and these are largely legal in nature. When making deals, professional legal knowledge is required to successfully resolve legal, tax, financial, regulatory and other issues.

We can help you solve your legal problems. With our support, you can avoid stress and save time you would have spent visiting authorities and trying to understand various complex legal procedures and rules.

Moore Stephens' business support consultants offer a wide range of legal services in the areas of international law, taxation, HR record-keeping, bank transactions, real estate and corporate restructuring.

Major challenges in business development include frequent changes in legislation and the tightening of regulatory requirements, especially for companies doing international business. Nothing creates more worry than suspense and uncertainty. You can have confidence in Moore Stephens because our consultants have a good grasp of Kazakhstan legislation and we are always ready to offer qualified legal assistance to our clients. We arrange all the information you need in orderly categories and then you make the decision. Our assistance becomes a tool to help you achieve your objectives.

Our legal services include:

- consulting on Kazakhstan and international taxation
- consulting on labour law
- legal support for mergers and acquisitions
- commercial law
- civil law

What makes us different?

Qualified to meet the challenges

You will be supported in the relevant area of law by a specialist professional with long-standing legal experience at large companies and advocacies, who will offer you the best solution.

Guarantee of an honest approach

We investigate potential solutions to your issue in detail, research alternatives and inform you about the legal assistance we can offer you.

Our experts are always ready to discuss your issues and provide recommendations by mail and telephone and at face-to-face meetings.

Individual solutions

Our legal services will serve you best because we listen to and understand your needs and circumstances. In this respect, we are helped by logical thinking, taking a complex view of the situation, using non-standard approaches and foreseeing the consequences of actions.

Accessibility

You will understand what we are talking about! Our explanations are accessible even for those without a legal education. We consider this to be an integral part of the notion of "professionalism" and a criterion of quality of legal services rendered.

*"In legal issues, you should not call for common sense but lawyers".

How we can help you

Consulting on Kazakhstan and international tax assessment issues

Legal requirements related to taxation and accounting are constantly changing and require careful consideration. Today, one of the major goals, and an area of great opportunity for multinational companies, is effective management of local and foreign taxes in a way that aligns them with general business objectives and operations.

Our specialists will support your company's financial department on issues of tax legislation usage. Our team has extensive experience of resolving international taxation issues, such as the transboundary ingoing and outgoing investments of multinational corporations, and internal operations in international groups.

Consulting on labour laws

Human resource issues require both daily solutions and accurate planning as part of a company's reorganisation, expansion or curtailment, or when entering new markets. Consultations with our labour law specialists will support you to make the most reasonable decisions.

In addition, we will carry all the financial risks associated with the quality and timeliness of HR record-keeping. We provide ongoing support, keeping track of changes in the law, and thus we ensure the compliance of your HR records with the requirements of labour law.

Legal support for mergers and acquisitions

In a severe economic environment, legal and financial assessment of potential contracts is more important than ever and provides real competitive advantage. A comprehensive legal audit is an important aspect of contract planning because it can influence purchase price or even the final decision on whether the contract is reasonable.

Our team of lawyers will help to prepare and implement the contract structure in a way that offers opportunities to soften or avoid undesired tax and legal consequences.

We provide legal support to clients throughout the making of the deal (from planning the structure to concluding the contract) and also while the strategic plan is implemented. We use our accumulated knowledge and experience to choose a structure for the contract that will not be dependent on changes in the tax law and will successfully pass detailed taxation authority audits in future.

Commercial law

We provide legal support in handling commercial deals including planning, negotiation of complicated commercial arrangements (outsourcing contracts, joint operations, distribution, delivery, manufacturing, renting, franchising, etc.) and formation of contracts with local and foreign consumers, providers and distributors.

Civil law

Moore Stephens' consultants provide legal assistance in the resolution of civil matters, including formation of contracts, agreements and other civil law documents, documentation expertise, and consulting on real estate transactions and inheritance.

We provide integrated legal services and support for local and international clients.
